

Free oral health training for midwives

Increase your skills and confidence to provide oral health advice to pregnant women

The Midwifery Initiated Oral Health (MIOH) Education Program, developed by Western Sydney University and partners prepares midwives with the necessary skills to promote oral health during pregnancy*.

Dental Health Services Victoria (DHSV) sponsors eligible Victorian midwives to undertake the course for free.

ACM endorsed for 16 CPD hours

“This course has improved my knowledge about oral health in pregnancy, vastly. It was comprehensive, easily understood and hugely important to pregnant women and their families. I immediately used this information when I booked women into our clinic.”

Victorian midwife

“The course was quick to learn, interesting and can easily be incorporated into our scope of pregnancy care.”

Victorian Midwife

Interested?

- To view the full sponsorship criteria and to apply, click here.
- Visit the ACM website for more course details.
- Contact: healthpromotion@dhsv.org.au